[Linz, Austria]

Sir,

I hope you will excuse me, a stranger, for my asking you a question.

I own some gold coins which I want to sell; do you like to buy them? I enclose a list of them containing a lead pencil reproduction of both sides and text. In case you want all the coins or part of them, please, let me know your intention and the price you can offer. All the coins represented in the list are gold.

May I propose a way how the sale can be done most conveniently by: You can commission a representative of the American Children's Relief Work or any other American Mission in Austria to receive the coins, whereas he would have to pay the sum agreed upon by you and myself.

Of course, the gentleman must be authorised by you to take the coins for you.

Yours truly

Dear Sir:

I have been requested by Mr. E. T. Newell, President of this Society, to reply to your letter in regard to gold coins which you offer for sale.
As Mr. Newell, himself, is a collector of only Greek and Roman coins, this would not interest him; and our Museum already has specimens of all those you offer.

Very truly yours,

Assistant to Curator
